What Sets Us Apart?

We educate first.

Everyone deserves to understand their legal situation without first writing a check. Glenn has written three books and eight special reports, hosted dozens of educational videos, posted hundreds of educational blogs and articles, and conducts regular “Wednesday Workshops” to educate the public about estate planning and elder law issues. Our goal is to make Michigan residents the most educated legal consumers in the country when it comes to their estate planning and elder law options.

We solve problems.

This your life and your legal matter. We are here to help you make great decisions.
We don’t “speak lawyer.” When you speak with some lawyers, you wonder if they are even speaking English. If you are our client, you will not hear us spouting archaic laws or IRS code sections—just good legal planning in plain English.

We are lifetime learners.

John Wooden said it best: “It is what you learn after you know it all that counts.” We have significant experience in all estate planning and elder law issues, yet we continuously work to increase our knowledge of the most cutting-edge planning strategies.

We believe in respect.

Many of our clients come to us confused or in physical, emotional, or financial pain. We promise we will treat you with the same kindness, compassion, and respect that we would give our own family members under the same circumstances.

Our firm exists to educate and provide you with the best solutions to your estate planning and elder law issues. We are optimists with an “abundance mentality” and are genuinely happy for others when they succeed. Glenn is one of only 18 Certified Elder Law Attorneys in Michigan—out of more than 35,000 attorneys in the state. He’s the host of the Sunday morning Senior Law Radio show on 93.5 FM WHMI.

Glenn is committed to providing seniors and their families with effective solutions to the four key aspects of the “planning pyramid”: incapacity planning, long-term care planning, wealth transfer, and beneficiary protection. Inspired by the difficult journey his father faced after being diagnosed with Parkinson’s disease, Glenn believes everyone—regardless of income or family structure—can benefit from a proactive approach to facing the challenges of aging. Our team of three attorneys and three legal assistants share this passion for helping others, so you can be assured you’ll be treated like family when you walk through our door.

When it comes to elder law and estate planning, what you don’t know can cost you dearly. Knowing how to plan effectively can help you protect your home and life savings while receiving benefits to pay for long-term care costs, ensure your wishes will be respected if you become too ill to manage your own affairs, avoid the crushing costs of probate and taxes, and allow your loved ones to be provided for after you’re gone. Knowledge is power, and we’re here to help. Contact us today to request your free strategy session
